

Respect

Respect of each individual, from their religious practices to their ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, cultural background or even to how they were raised to view disability issues is important to us. We believe everyone should feel comfortable to express themselves and their individuality, whether in our group setting or alone with their mentor. We can disagree on disability issues about if the views are oppressing without arguing in a disrespectful manner.